

Microneedling

Microneedling is an advance delivery system improving the absorption of active ingredients used in the correction of many different skin conditions.

What are the benefits of skin needling?

The procedure is rather versatile and may be used to help treat varying concerns on different areas of the body. These include:

- Fine lines and wrinkles.
- Acne scarring.
- Scarring.
- Stretch marks.
- Skin texture and tone.
- Enlarged pores
- Hair loss or thinning.

Results on any treatment may vary per individual as everybody is different and may respond differently to treatments mentioned.

What does skin needling do?

The skin's natural production of collagen is not a constant or steady supply and as we age starts to slow and deplete. This can cause the skin to develop fine lines, wrinkles, more prominent scarring and not react or heal to its full potential. Skin needling offers nature a "helping hand" by helping to enhance collagen production and the penetration of skincare concentrates. The device is applied on the surface of the skin and creates small perforations; as a result the body's automatic healing mechanism kicks in, believing there is a wound to heal. The healing response of the body helps stimulate the right environment for excess collagen and elastin to be produced. By combining the procedure with the correct skincare concentrates it may allow the patient to see maximum results.
